We are to have this great wonder of the age with us; and on Wednesday What the source or nature of that force is which gives her a super human power is an inexplicable mystery. The mere muscular strength of a female could not possibly avail against the physical strength or agility of trained athletes. Yet they go down before her as totally bereft of the power to resist as if they had been benumbed by the wand of the enchanters of old. Perhaps those enchanters did work through the possession of the same mysterious gift. A psychic force is no more out if the range of providential gifts than those equally rare intellectual andowments which enable the way less of our race to tower above all objects.
